MIT student attempts record-breaking flight

Frequent flyer. Matt Guthmiller, 19, is trying to become the youngest person to complete a solo flight around the world.

Matt Guthmiller is going to have quite the story to tell about his summer vacation when he returns to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in the fall.

The 19-year-old soon-to-be MIT sophomore is currently flying around the world and trying to become the youngest person ever to fly solo around the globe.

"It's been a lot of fun. It's really cool," Guthmiller told Metro recently as he was mid-flight from Kuala Lumpur to Manila. "So many people have been so nice to me. Total strangers that find out what I'm doing think it's cool and take me out to dinner and show me around town."

He will travel roughly 29,000 miles on the trip that will last more than a month. He's expected to finish around mid July, though delays are possible.

The South Dakota native began flying at age 16 and has since earned his commercial pilot certificate.

He's flying a small, single-engine plane, which had some of the seats removed to fit extra fuel tanks to increase the range. He's averaging at least nine hours of flight time during each leg of his journey.

Besides some minor issues related to severe weather and some maintenance after mistakenly being given the wrong fuel, Guthmiller said the ride's been pretty smooth.

He's tweeted pictures of the view from his plane, which included pyramids in Egypt.

He's also tweeted about having hours of Michael Bublé to listen to while making a seven-hour flight over the desert.

While seeing international cities that he's never visited before has been exciting, he said it's strange to be on his own.

"Getting to all of these places I thought of visiting over the years and then being by myself was really weird," he said. "I'm not there with a group

Record holder

Meet the man Guthmiller is trying to unseat

According to Guinness World Records, the youngest person to fly solo around the world is California-native Jack Wiegand who finished his trip at the age of 21.

Wiegand completed the trip in June 2013 in just under two months.

of friends like I would have expected."

Guthmiller, an electrical engineer and computer science major, is seeking sponsors to help pay for the trip, then any money raised after that will help Code.org, a nonprofit that tries to expand participation and availability of computer science.

Besides the money, Guthmiller is hoping his mission inspires others.

"The biggest thing I'm hoping to accomplish is to go out and inspire other people to do things. You go out and kind of break it down and figure out how to do it and you can do it," he said. "I don't think there's anything particularly special about me, or me as a pilot ... I just read about other kids doing it and figured I could do the same thing."

Ross Aimer, the CEO of Aero Consulting Experts and a retired United Airlines captain, said the flying solo part of Guthmiller's journey is not the hardest aspect — it's the support needed in planning and on the ground.

"There are still a lot of problems associated with this type of adventure that have to be overcome, but if you've got a good team that can take care of all that stuff, then it can be done," said Aimer.

For Guthmiller, the journey is more than just the potential solo flight record.

"Ultimately ... the biggest thing is not the record, just to hopefully inspire other people," he said.

Boston confirms cases of mosquito-borne virus

Boston public health officials have confirmed four cases of the mosquito-borne virus Chikungunya in the Boston area.

The viral disease is transmitted to people by mosquitoes, according to the Boston Public Health Commission, although those who have been diagnosed are believed to have contracted the virus while traveling in the Caribbean.

A Boston health spokeswoman told WCVB that no public threat or advisory has been issued locally.

Boston EMS reportedly pulled two men from the Charles River on the Esplanade on Saturday evening after troopers responded to a report of two people "on the ground" there.

A 66-year-old Cambridge man was taken to the hospital around 5:30 p.m. after he was dragged from the water near the Harvard Bridge, Boston.com reported.

Shortly after, EMS had to pull a 39-year-old Cambridge man from waist-deep water.

That man was placed into protective custody, and was presumed to be intoxicated. METRO

Joy ride. Police officer nabbed for taking cruiser

A Boston cop who has been on administrative leave for 10 months was arrested Friday for allegedly using a police cruiser without authorization.

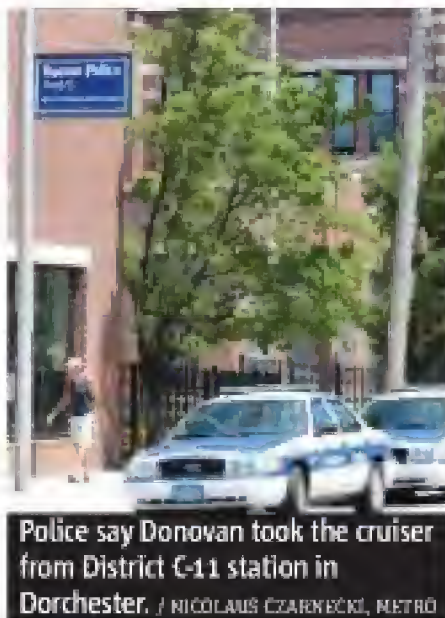

Boston Police Officer Patrick Donovan allegedly took the vehicle from a Boston Police station in Dorchester sometime between 5 p.m. and midnight on Friday and drove it to Revere, where he was later involved in an altercation with a domestic partner, a police spokeswoman told The Boston Globe.

He was arrested after police found the cruiser near his Dorchester home, and faces a charge of use of a motor vehicle without authority.

Revere police are looking into the domestic incident.

Police did not say on Sunday whether Donovan was still a member of the department, though a spokeswoman told the Globe that police are taking steps to terminate his employment.

Bomb scare. Homes evacuated in Lawrence

Several homes were evacuated in Lawrence on Sunday morning after police found chemicals and what they believed to be a pipe bomb in a private residence.

Methuen and Lawrence police responded with a hazardous materials team and Massachusetts State Police Bomb Squad, and after a two-hour investigation, determined there was no threat.

The incident began when police went to the house to recover weapons.

The items apparently belonged to a man in his 40s who lived at the residence and died in May. His mother found the suspicious items, which included a rifle, an AR-15-style gun, fuses and powders, when she was cleaning the apartment.

What authorities initially believed to be a pipe bomb was actually a nunchuck.

Police said the man was not believed to be involved in bomb making.

Simpson is a newlywed again

Jessica Simpson and Eric Johnson were married over the weekend in front of 250 friends and family at the San Ysidro Ranch, located in Montecito in Santa Barbara County, California, according to E! Online. The big day comes after months of planning and several years of engagement, as Simpson first confirmed the engagement in November 2010. They have two children together, 2-year-old daughter Maxwell and 1-year-old son Ace. As Simpson explained during a visit to "Good Morning America" earlier this year, there were no fears of getting cold feet at this point. "I already feel like we're an old married couple," she said. "Like, if he wanted to run, he could've run when I was hormonal and pregnant."

After a four-year engagement, Simpson and Johnson tied the knot.

Calling on Kanye West gets expected results

SHOULD DRAKE BE REGRETTING HIS DECISION TO LET KANYE WEST TAKE THE HELM?

Drake may want to take a bit more care in selecting his next substitute to help out while he's felled by his current mystery illness. The rapper had to bow out of a recent appearance at the Wireless Festival in London and figured he'd make it up to the crowd by sending Kanye West in his place, according to Pitchfork. But West had other ideas about how to spend the evening. West, who performed with an odd-looking mask obscuring his face, stopped the show for one of his standard 15-minute rants, his auto-tuned words accompanied by a booing audience: "I'm not going to call no names, I'm not going to say Nike or anything. I'm not dissing Louis Vuitton, I'm not dissing the Gucci group and s—," he shouted. "I'm just saying, don't discriminate against me because I'm a black man, or because I'm a celebrity, to determine that I can't create. 'Cause, you know, no black guy or celebrity's making no Louis Vuitton nothing."

Talking points

BFF minus the 'forever' for Lovato and Gomez

Demi Lovato unfollowed former friend Selena Gomez on Twitter. Drama! She also posted then quickly deleted a rather cryptic tweet: "Swimming away from the bulls— bye b—h." "Demi tried to help Selena with her substance problems and getting rid of Justin from her life and it is apparent Selena refused to listen to Demi's advice," a source says, according to Hollywood Life.

Biebs losing Gomez?

Justin Bieber returned to his favorite city for getting into trouble, Miami, and boarded a yacht for a private party filled with booze and scantily clad women. Not that he's trying to prove a point or anything. Photos show the 20-year-old slugging back beers, entertaining guests and wearing several types of hats but exactly zero shirts. The only thing missing from the party? On-again, off-again girlfriend Selena Gomez, who was living it up back in Los Angeles, celebrating the holiday at a party at Mastro's Ocean Club in Malibu.

But sources say the separation wasn't Bieber's idea, as he reportedly asked Gomez to spend the Fourth with him but she told him to buzz off. And speaking of independence, RadarOnline decided to celebrate the holiday weekend by posting a poll asking readers, "Should Selena dump Justin for good?" An overwhelming 90.05 percent answered yes.

On the road again

Interview. Susan Sarandon didn't realize "Tammy" had similarities to "Thelma and Louise."

Twenty-five years after "Thelma and Louise," Susan Sarandon is taking a different kind of on-screen road trip with "Tammy." Sarandon stars as the alcoholic, pill-popping grandmother to the titular Tammy (Melissa McCarthy), out to cause trouble.

You've been doing a lot of interesting smaller projects lately. And even this, though it stars Melissa McCarthy, is from a first-time director. Mark Duplass called me and told me to do this one, and then Mark and Jay Duplass called me to tell me to do "Ping Pong Summer." I always feel like if someone asks you to do something that's a favor to help get a film up, and it's a one-and-a-half-week commitment, that's a hell of a lot easier than a month and a half.

I would imagine that happens a lot: smaller projects with first-time directors seeking you out.

Yes. Sometimes it works and other times it's very frustrating. First-time directors are very often trampled on by whoever buys it or the studio or whoever. ... "Producer" is probably the job you can be the least qualified for. There can be nine producers on a movie — they gave a little bit of money or knew somebody or whatever. very protective and very positive and lent their expertise.

Do you connect this film to "Thelma and Louise" at all? It didn't really come up while we were filming. And then a year later when we went to do the press photo shoot, they had a convertible and a desert setting, and I said, "Are you sure you want to do that?"

Speaking of 'Thelma and Louise' ...

So far during your press tour, how many people have asked to take a selfie with you?

[Laughs] Nobody, nobody! Oh no, one on-camera reporter did. That's so funny that it became such a big thing. We just did it as an afterthought. And then we were doing the interview for the Hollywood Reporter, and at the end of it, I said, "Let's just do one," and we did one with my phone. [My dog] Penny tweeted it, and now it's a thing.

We're about to have another anniversary for "Thelma and Louise," and I think there's going to be a lot of that." And they were like, "Oh my God, I never thought of that." And they struck the car! They took the car away!

Joel McHale, future action star

Interview. The comedy actor gets to play with knives in "Deliver Us from Evil."

Joel McHale wants everyone to know he can be a badass if needed. His latest film, the supernatural thriller "Deliver Us from Evil," is a departure for the "Community" star — and that's exactly why he did it. Well, that and he got to play with knives a whole bunch.

You've got a pretty bad-ass fight scene in this film. Is that meant to be your sort of "Hey look at me" for action movie producers?

Yes. In fact, at the end of the movie my character sits up and says, "Hey, action movie producers, what else do you want?" [Laughs] Hell, no one's called, but I'll take the calls.

You do handle yourself quite convincingly in the fight scenes.

Oh good. I worked my ass off

Joel McHale stretches out into dramatic horror in the exorcism saga "Deliver Us from Evil."

WIREIMAGE

to make sure that looked real. So many people have been like, "Was it hard going from comedy into drama?" No. It was hard learning to knife fight, to make it look real. My greatest concern was that if I looked slow or it looked amateur or anything like that then it would suck. I wanted it to look blindingly fast.

Don't most cops pull a gun on suspects instead of a knife, though?

Right, yes. But guns are no fun when you've got knives. My character is psychotic in that he prefers knives. He would much rather just stick you a couple of times. I think my character would probably be a criminal if he weren't in law enforcement.

Wearing a Red Sox hat around the South Bronx is a sign of mental issues.

Yeah. I got s--- walking around the set. But he does things just to agitate people. He likes to be contrary. That Boston Red Sox hat really informed the whole thing. He's like, "Yeah, I'm wearing this, what are you going to do?"

But I imagine you weren't walking around the set asking Teamsters to punch you.

No. Well, I would be like, "It's a character hat, dummy. I've been wearing it for weeks. What's wrong with you?"

Presidential address

What else are you looking to do in film besides the obvious "Community" movie that will be made any day now?

It will be made, and it will be bigger than the "Pirates of the Caribbean" franchise combined. [Laughs] I've been doing "The Soup" live, and I spent the entire spring preparing for the White House Correspondents' Dinner. And now I've just been kind of getting to know my children again.

How do you think the Correspondents' Dinner went?

I know that some critics didn't like it, other critics liked it. That crowd, they're going to be divided. Get this, they're going to be partisan. Boy, I had a ball doing it.

Domestic violence.

An Italian artist wants people to realize abuse can happen to anyone.

They are faces you've seen, but never like this. They're families you've shared dinner with, women whose adventures you've read about, men who could be your neighbors — people you think you know.

That's the point of Italian artist Alessandro Palombo's latest "social campaign," No Violence Against Women, which calls attention to domestic abuse through the battered faces of famous cartoon women and their partners.

"I've decided to launch this new series because I wanted to give visibility to a problem that affects a great amount of women all over the world," he told Metro in an email.

Palombo is known to make his points through cultural icons — he previously depicted fashion moguls including Vogue's Anna Wintour and Karl Lagerfeld wearing Bambi for an anti-fur ad. This time, he chose the familiar faces to make a point: that domestic violence is so prevalent, its victims and perpetrators could be anyone.

"Have you ever seen a very normal couple walking on the street, and then a glimpse of the woman's face, bruised? In many cases, monsters are apparently very normal people," he said.

According to a 2013 study published in the journal Science, more than 20 percent of women ages 15 and older in North America have suffered some form of violence by their boyfriend or husband.

Palombo is concerned about the commodification of women through advertising and fashion, a trend he wants to see reversed by nurturing respect. His art is intended to give a voice to domestic violence victims, as many may be ashamed to ask for help or believe the abuse is justified because of something they did, he said.

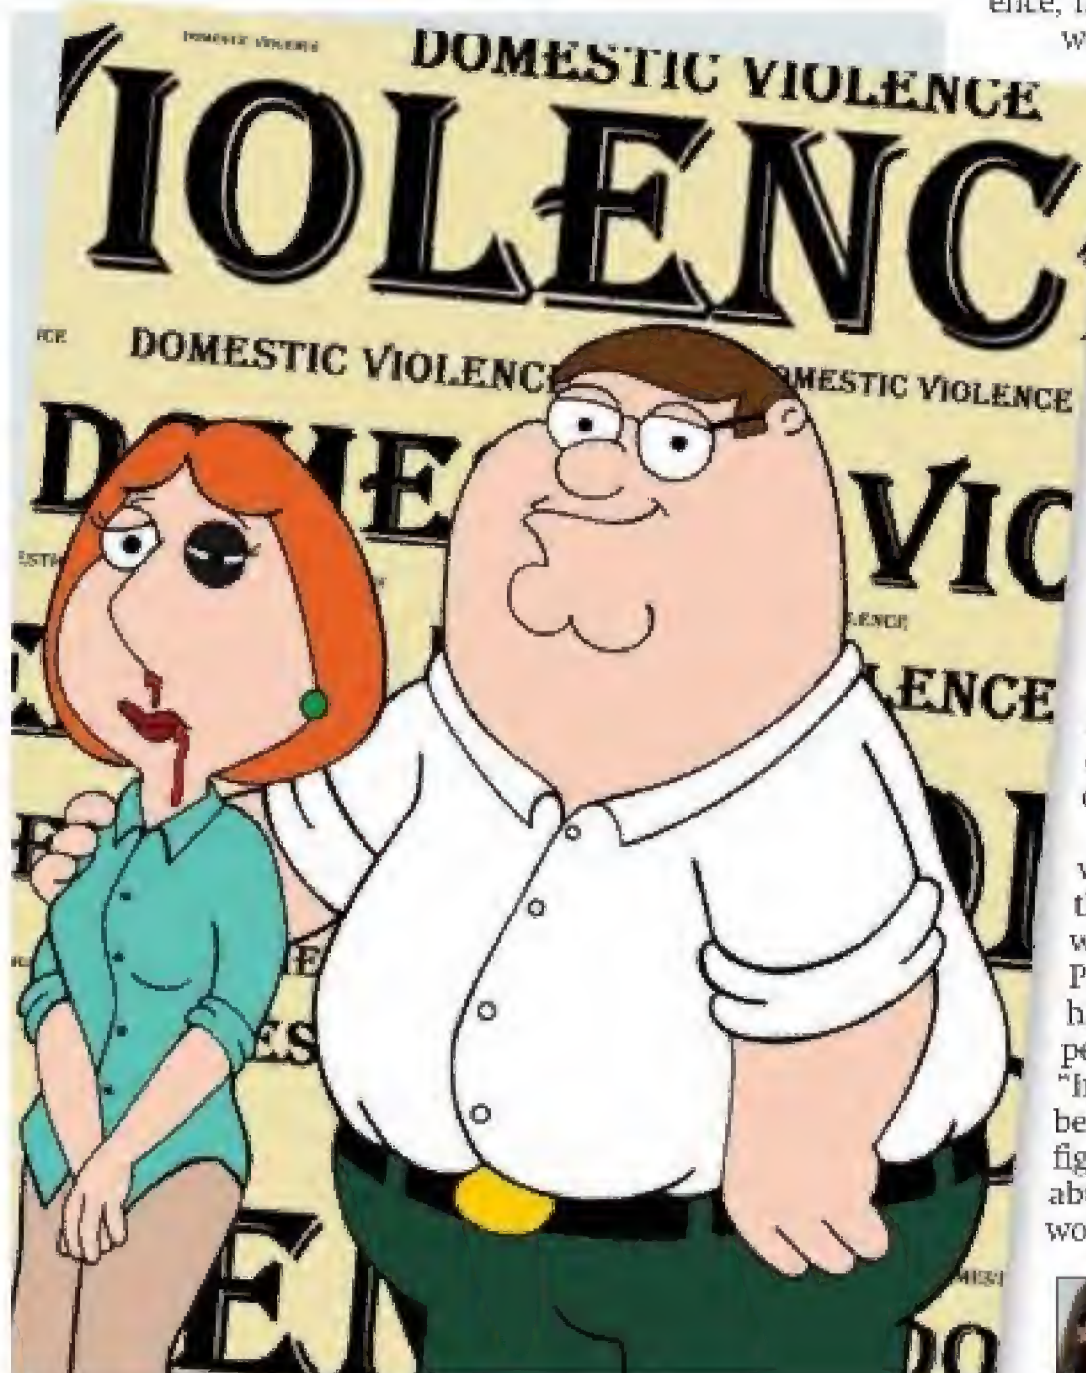

Breaking domestic violence laws, where they exist, should be met with severe punishment, Palombo said, but hopes his work inspires a more personal call to action: "In my opinion, [it] should be men themselves to fight against men who abuse women all over the world."

Tip

Try not to multitask if you can help it

I fall into this trap all of the time, and most Millennials do too. We try and do multiple projects at once and end up not getting anything done. Research shows that multitasking decreases productivity. If you give each individual task the attention it deserves, you'll be more effective.

DAN SCHAWBEL

DANSCHAWBEL.COM

Dan Schawbel is a workplace expert, keynote speaker, and author of the New York Times best-selling book, "Promote Yourself: The New Rules For Career Success."

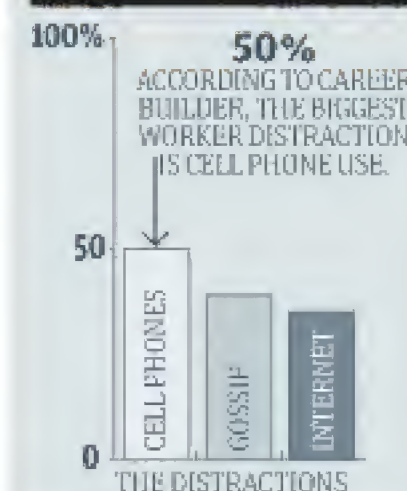

Companies are putting more pressure on employees than ever before and pushing them to do more with fewer resources in the same amount of time. Furthermore, there's an expectation that you're always answering work emails, regardless of day of the week or if you're on vacation.

A new study by Career-Builder found that the biggest distractions that workers have are their cell phones (50 percent), gossip (42 percent) and the Internet (39 percent). It is to your benefit to turn your cell phone ring tone off, keep your thoughts about co-workers to yourself and keep yourself from aimlessly searching the Web for personal reasons. Technology can really hurt your productivity and cause you to lose track of time and miss deadlines. Gossip in the workplace can get you in major trouble, because the strength of your relationships with co-workers has a direct impact on your career trajectory. Here are some tips for being more productive at work:

Start with a list of tasks that can be completed quickly

This way, you can get the smaller stuff out of the way and give more of your attention and effort to the bigger projects. By doing this, you won't have to worry about those smaller tasks that could end up getting in the way of the ones that really matter. Let's say you have a list of 20 tasks that you have to get to in a given day. If you can eliminate five quickly, it won't seem as bad, and it's very motivating to accomplish several items in a short period of time. It's intimidating having so many tasks sometimes and it puts a lot of stress on you if you do have that many, so eliminate the easy ones first.

Pardon the interruption

Use a calendar to keep track of everything

I use my iPhone calendar to run my life. If there's someone I know I should call in two months, I'll mark it down to send them an email then. If I have a speaking engagement or a potential client I have to follow up with, I'll mark it down. This makes life much easier, and you end up not forgetting anything so you're more effective. Another trick I do is to set two reminders for every event. One occurs a day before and the other happens 15 minutes before. This way, I never miss anything.

Horoscope

Cancer | June 21-July 22.
People will think you're pushy if you try to make plans for everyone around you. Listen and learn. By observing friends you will gain experience.

Leo | July 23-Aug. 22.
Show some consideration. Not everyone will opt to do things your way. Give your friends and family breathing room while you master your skills.

Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22.
Make your own decisions. Let everyone know that you won't be pressured into doing something that goes against your morals and beliefs. Take control.

Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22.
You'll have plenty of energy today. No one will be able to keep up with you, making it easy for you to outdo the competition. A physical challenge will be satisfying.

Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21.
An escalating problem in a personal relationship could lead to estrangement if it's not handled discreetly. Don't compound the problem by revealing intimate details to outsiders.

Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21.
Don't assume that everyone who asks for a donation is with a legitimate organization. If you are at all suspicious about the request, walk away and cut your losses.

Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan. 20.
Opposition will set you back. If you find a way to compromise, it will be easier to reach your goals. Keep life simple until you can comfortably expand your interests.

Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb. 18.
Friends and colleagues will be bowled over by your unique ideas. Find a platform where you can present your vision to people who will support your plans and impact your future.

Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20.
It's necessary to keep up-to-date with your banking records. Go over your statements meticulously and investigate any questionable withdrawals, expenses or bank charges.

Aries | March 21-April 20.
If someone is not being totally honest, ask direct questions. You can't enter into an endeavor if you don't know where you stand.

Taurus | April 21-May 21.
You will feel stressed when dealing with personal or business relationships. Take a step back from the situation before you do or say anything that could be detrimental.

Gemini | May 22-June 20.
Take a break from your routine. You deserve a rest, and spending some time outdoors or simply relaxing will help your state of mind. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Letters

Women get a raw deal, why make it worse?

Re: 'Pursuit of pleasure not protected' (Metro, July 3-6)
The reason women are upset about Hobby Lobby Supreme Court decision is an undercurrent in the letter from Justice Roberts. Women carry the burden of unprotected sex, not men. If a child is the result, a man can just walk away, but the pregnant woman must decide to carry a baby to term or abort the fetus.

This is the harsh reality of the gender difference. Abortion is a heartbreaking act, which in my opinion, should not be used as a form of birth control. I do not understand why birth control is under attack — is it not better to prevent an unwanted child rather than to abort it?

I wonder if men carried the child, if the men on the court would have voted the way they did. I wonder how many corporations attend a house of worship. Have we not carried "a corporation is a person" too far?

MARION LANE, VIA EMAIL, VIA EMAIL

No one's taking away your birth control

The mainstream media on TV and in print, aka "state-run media," play all the lies about the SCOTUS decision in the Hobby Lobby case. You would think every woman in America will no longer have access to birth control products. You just have to do a little research (not much) to find out that 16 contraception items will still be paid for by Hobby Lobby for their employees in their health care. Four products will no longer be paid for, and the women who want them will have to pay for them by themselves. No one has taken away a woman's right to choose any contraception item, except for the fact of who will pay. Shame on the media again. This will come back to bite them because the real "war on women" is believing that we are all stupid.

Red Sox fall in extras, drop series to Orioles

The Red Sox have played just five games so far in July, but this month is looking a whole lot like last month, as the Sox are 1-4 since last Tuesday. Sunday's 7-6 extra-innings loss to Baltimore was the most painful of the bundle of "Ls" as Boston rallied to tie the game 6-6 in the seventh inning but ultimately fell to the Orioles, losing the three-game series. Baltimore plated four runs in the top of the busy seventh to take a 6-1 lead, but thanks to a home run by David Ross and RBIs by Xander Bogaerts, Daniel Nava, David Ortiz and Mike Napoli the Sox responded with five runs of their own in the bottom of the inning.

Neither team would score again until the 12th inning when the O's garnered one run off of two hits with Sox reliever Edward Mujica proving to be the Boston goat. David Lough tripled to deep center and J.J. Hardy singled him home a batter later as Baltimore improved to 40-48 on the season. The Sox fell to 39-49. MATT BURKE

Lester, Lackey have weathered the storm

MLB. The 2014 Sox would likely be historically bad without their top two starting pitchers.

To think the Red Sox, a team with a record of 39-49 and a team that is now nine games out of first place in the American League East, could actually be worse off than they currently are is a frightening thought.

But, without the seasons of No. 1 and No. 2 starters Jon Lester and John Lackey, the Red Sox would more than likely be owners of the worst record in baseball. In games Lester or Lackey have started in this season, the Sox are 21-15. In games either of the two do not start, the Red Sox are 18-34, a pretty large disparity. In total, Red Sox starters have thrown a total of 49 quality starts — Lester and Lackey have 25 of them.

Coming into the season, it was thought the Red Sox had one of the deeper rotations in the league, but going into play Sunday their 4.17 ERA was 24th in baseball.

Despite Boston's playoff chances becoming slimmer by the day, Lester especially has risen to the occasion, putting aside everything that has to do with him and a contract for 2015 to pitch one of the best stretches of his career.

"There's been times throughout his career where he gets on these stretches and you just give him the ball and get out of the way," manager John Farrell said.

Lester's June was spectacular as he posted a 1.98 ERA in six starts, the best mark in any single month with at least four starts since he had a 1.84 ERA over six starts in May 2010. In his last five starts, he's allowed four earned runs over 37.2 innings for a 0.96 ERA. He's 3-0 and the Red Sox are 4-1 in those games.

"That is what I try and pride myself on," said Lester when asked about going deep into games. "The bullpen knowing coming into my starts that I'm going to go seven innings — I've always tried priding myself on innings and going deep in every start."

Though Lackey has struggled a bit of late, the team has still gone 4-2 over his last six starts and he's posted a 3.84 ERA for the entire year, 25th in the AL.

Report: Celts still in pursuit of Love

NBA. Danny Ainge is said to be looking at "creative ways" to trade for Kevin Love.

Celtics fans spent the majority of Memorial Day weekend discussing the ways that Minnesota forward Kevin Love could wind up in Boston. Throughout Fourth of July weekend, that discussion again cropped up, as Yahoo! Sports NBA reporter Adrian Wojnarowski tweeted Saturday that the Celtics are still exploring ways to land the three-time All-Star.

Wojnarowski's tweet read: "Here's something that remains unchanged: Danny Ainge's relentless pursuit of creative ways to engage Minnesota on a Kevin Love deal."

The Celtics' key chip in any major trade would have been the No. 6 overall pick in the draft 11 days ago. The C's used the pick to select Oklahoma State point guard Marcus Smart. Any deal for Love going forward would certainly have to include the future first round picks the C's have coming to them from Brooklyn as well as the likes of Jared Sullinger and Kelly Olynyk. The Boston Globe's Baxter Holmes reported this past weekend that the Celtics would also be willing to "use their picks to acquire players from other teams that they could then ship to Minnesota in a deal" for Love.

HAVE YOUR ANTIDEPRESSANT MEDICATIONS STOPPED WORKING?

Researchers at MGH are studying the use of a low dose of a marketed medication for people taking antidepressants that are no longer having the same therapeutic benefit.

Participants must have received antidepressant treatment, felt better for at least 3 months with this treatment, and then begun to feel depressed again.

Study medication is provided at no cost.

Compensation is provided for attending study visits.

If you are between the ages of 18 and 65 and you are interested in participating, please contact Lindsay at lhylek@mg.harvard.edu or 617-726-8727.
